AN OLD MAN

Over a hundred years ago a university student found himself seated in a train by the side of a person who seemed to be a well-to-do peasant. He was praying the Rosary and moving the beads on his fingers.

"Sir, do you still believe in such outdated things?"
 mocked the student.

"Yes, I do. Do you not?" asked the man.

The student burst out into laughter and said, "I do not believe in such silly things. Take my advice: throw the rosary out through this window, and learn what science has to say about it."

"Science? I do not understand this science? Perhaps you can explain it to me," the man said humbly with some tears in his eyes.

The student saw that the man was deeply moved. So to avoid further hurting the feelings of the old man, he said:

"Please give me your address and I will send you some literature to help you on the matter."

The man fumbled in the inside pocket of his coat and gave the boy his visiting card. On glancing at the card, the student, lowered his head in shame and became silent. On the card he read:

"Louis Pasteur, the Director of the Institute of Scientific Research, Paris."

Alex Filippenco, Theoretical Physicist and Carnegie Professor of the Year in America in 2006 - "It seems like nature is just too clever for us - every time we make what we think is an incredible discovery, nature opens up for us a universe, even a multiverse with laws so bizarre, they defy everything we know."

Moral: If nature is too clever for us - how much more the Lord Himself!
