Reflection

Once upon a time Sammy and his sister Marie visited their grandparents at their farm. Sammy picked up a slingshot to play with out in the woods. He practised and practised but could never hit the target. Getting a little discouraged, he headed back for lunch. As he was walking back he saw Grandma's pet duck.

Just out of impulse, he let the slingshot fly ... and, wouldn't you know, hit the duck square on the head and killed it. He was shocked and grieved. In a panic, he hid the dead duck in a woodpile. Marie had seen it all from the window but she said nothing. After lunch the next day Grandma said, "Marie, let's wash the dishes." Marie said, "But Grandma, Sammy told me he wanted to help in the kitchen."

Then she whispered to Sammy, "Remember the duck?" Sammy got nervous knowing his sister knew about the duck and if he doesn't obey, she may tell his grandparents about it. So without saying anything, he hid the dishes.

Later that day, Grandpa asked if the children wanted to go fishing but Grandma said, "I'm sorry but I need Marie to help make supper." Marie just smiled and said, "Well that's alright because Sammy told me he wanted to help."

She whispered again to Sammy, "Remember the duck?" So Marie went fishing and Sammy stayed to help. After several days of Marie taking advantage of Sammy, he finally couldn't stand it any longer. He came to Grandma and confessed that he had killed the duck.

Grandma knelt down, gave him a hug and said, "Sweetheart, I know. I was standing at the window and I saw the whole thing, but, because I love you, I forgave you. I had to let you learn the hard way that it is always best to tell the truth ... otherwise someone who finds out will take advantage of you just like your sister."

Moral: Always confess your mistakes. It will take away a burden of guilt from your heart which will boost your conscience and no one will take advantage of your secrets! Accept your mistake, say sorry and seek forgiveness.
